Retired Navy Commander Here Tells Young Men Of Great Opportunities

By COMMANDER J. W. STORM
Retired Naval Officer, Resident of Sierra Madre

THE advantages offered by enlistment in the Navy command the attention of every alert young man . . . the opportunity to learn a useful trade . . . a fair salary . . . promotion . . . travel to distant foreign shores . . . wholesome food . . . expert medical and dental care— a career. These features illustrate the attractiveness of Navy life.

Upon enlistment, the recruit (apprentice seaman), is sent to one of the Naval Training Stations, where he is given an intensive course of instruction. A typical day's program of instruction includes: manual of arms, school of the squad, battalion drill, rowing, aptitude for Navy Trade Schools, chemical warfare, knot tying, lectures and drills in signals, ship's rigging, rifle firing, life saving, swimming. He is taught personal cleanliness and how to take care of his clothing. All recruits must wash their own clothes, and, many a sailor home on leave, has proudly taken over the family wash. In their free time, movies, reading and athletics provide entertainment.

Lest a single moment be wasted, the Navy even paints flags of all Nations, signal code flags and insignia on the walls of drill halls, and posts copies of the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights on barrack bulletin boards.

During his recruit training, each recruit receives $21.00 per month; recruit training covers a period of about four months. When this training period is over, the recruit is advanced to the rating of seaman second class or fireman third class with in increase in pay, $36 per month. He is then given a short period of leave, then either goes to one of the several Navy trade schools, or joins the fleet at once. The recruit who goes to the Trade School is the one who has shown by his conduct, education, ambition and adaptability that he will probably graduate. The qualifications mentioned above are ascertained while he is undergoing his recruit training.

Graduates from these schools are constantly needed in the Navy to fill vacancies left by men who have been promoted or have completed their naval service. Since graduates are expected to fill petty officer ratings in the Navy, qualities of ambition, education and character from which leadership can be developed are required of applicants for these schools.

A graduate who perseveres in his ambition to become a petty officer in the Navy, obeys regula-

More than 250 Sierra Madreans and their friends attended the Congregational Churhc dinner Friday evening, and scores of additional visitors enjoyed the flower show and bazaar during the afternoon.

Bookie Raid Here Brings Convictions

A Sierra Madre police raid of last February 1, during which high powered radio receiving and transmitting equipment was confiscated ,resulted this week in the conviction of three members of a bookie syndicate on a charge of transmitting racing results from Santa Anita to Las Vegas, Nev., without a license.

Men convicted were Joseph La Due of Las Vegas, who had rented a house at 620 East Sierra Madre blvd., where the radio equipment was installed; Dave Stearns, also of Las Vegas, and Julius C. Loser of Los Angeles. All pleaded guilty to the charge of illegal operation of a broadcasting station. They appeared Monday before Federal Judge Ralph E. Jenney who imposed fines totaling $3000.

Proceedure of the group was to place a "watcher" at Santa Anita race track, with minute radio sending equipment concealed in his clothing. At the close of each race, he flashed results to a fellow worker waiting in a car some distance from the track, who in turn relayed the message to the residence station from where it was rebroadcast to members of the syndicate throughout the nation.

Noted Sierra Madre Coach Quits Job At Cal-Tech

Concluding 40 years of gridiron coaching and 21 years as athletic mentor and coach at Caltech, W. L. "Fox" Stanton presented his resignation to Caltech's physical education department Monday.

Stanton's retirement takes a well loved and highly respected coach out of Pacific Coast football. During his career in the Southern California Conference he has coached eight championship teams. He also coached the Camp Lewis team which met the Mare Island Marines in the New Year's game of 1917.

During recent years Mr. Stanton has developed an extensive almond grove near Paso Robles, and has had retirement under consideration for some time. No successor has been named to his post at Caltech, nor has Stanton announced any plans for the immediate future. The Stantons have been residents of Sierra Madre for many years, making their home at 515 Manzanita avenue.

WOMEN PLAN PARTY TO GIVE CHILDREN OF WAR TORN NATIONS SOME XMAS CHEER

Looking beyond the confines of their own comfortable homes to other parts of the world where hardships are the daily fare, a group of Sierra Madre women headed by Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr., will sponsor a Christmas tea on Thursday, December 4, to raise Christmas funds for the children in war ravaged countries.

The affair will be held at the Woman's clubhouse and plans are rapidly taking shape through the able committee work of Mmes. C. E. Rappolee, Earl C. Wilcox, Sidney Jewell, John H. Robertson, Frederic Groetsema, Don Strite, Fred Krinke, W. S. Hull, L. L. Krebs, W. H. Scoines, Bert Gaskill, F. D. R. Moote, Fannie Sea, S. R. Sheriff, W. J. Lawless, W. B. Heagerty, W. R. Morgan, Arnold G. H. Bode, W. S. Bovard, George McRoberts, Sr., and Miss Ruth West.

Entire proceeds will be used to provide some Christmas cheer for children who each day face the grim realities of war.

Name School Board Head On Council For Civilian Defense

Completing the appointments to Sierra Madre's Council for Civilian Defense, the city council last evening named Edwin Ward to head the committee on human resources and skills.

Mr Ward graduated from grammar school here, attended Pasadena High School and Pomona College. For the last four years he has served as president of the school board. He was formerly Sunday school superintendent and is now treasurer of the Congregational Church.

City Is First To Organize Fire Crew

While 29 American Legion posts in the 18th District are combining efforts to supply 174 young civilian forest fire fighters, Sierra Madre and neighboring towns along the foothills are in advance of this plan with a United States Forest Service Volunteer crew already organized by Fred LaLone.

Last week 25 members of this group took their first field workout under the direction of Santa Anita District Ranger Pat Harlan, assisted by John Allen, Robert Hanson and John J. Peters.

During this training period Harlan gave a complete outline of all types of forest work and equipment. His talk included analysis of radio transmitter and receiving equipment, field and home telephones and switch board operation; location of lookout stations throughout the Angeles Forest and proceedure of locating fires and dispatching crews.

The tanker unit was demonstrated by Robert Hanson and John Peters, Big Santa Anita tanker operator. General Forest Service training was detailed by John Allen who conducted a department tour .

According to LaLone this group of Forest Service Volunteer Firemen now comprises over 80 members who have taken as their motto, "Let Every Week be Fire Prevention Week."

Woman Seeks Relief By Drowning

Leaving a note saying that she could no longer endure the terrific pain which she had been suffering for more than two weeks, Mrs. Laura Belle Seely, 64, took her life by drowning herself in the bath tub at her home, 145 Grove street, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Seeley had been a resident of California for 31 years and was well known in Los Angeles as a Christian Science practitioner. Recently she had been making her home here with her sister, Mrs. Edith Fisk Kenny, who will officiate at the funeral service to be held tomorrow at 11 a.m. at the Pasadena Mausoleum.

Other surviving relatives are Sebring C. Fisk, a brother, of Tampa, Florida, and a daughter, Mrs. Andrew Still of Los Angeles.

State Guard Officers To Be Feted

Testimonial Dinner Tomorrow For Col. Jack Hastie And His Aides

Distinguished citizens of this community are to join the leaders from 40 Southern California cities and towns next Friday evening November 14, at the Pasadena Athletic Club to honor leaders of California State Guard forces in this area.

Mayors, presidents of Chambers of Commerce, heads of service clubs, members of county boards of supervisors, the California legislature and city councils will be present to join in the word of appreciation to Colonel Jack Hatie, Jr., of Glendora, commanding officer of all State Guard troops in this section of the state. A short but sparkling program of brief after dinner talks will be presented. Charles Paddock, formerly a world-famous athlete, will be the toastmaster.

Among the speakers who will develop various parts of the general theme, "The Mission of the State Guard," are John B. Long, general manager of the California Newspaper Publishers' Association, "To Preserve the Freedom of the Press; Col. Halsey E. Yates, U.S. Army, "To Supplement the Army;" Thomas Schwartz, Sierra Madre city councilman and director of the League of California Municipalities, "To Protect Our Home Communities;" C. E. Grier, chairman of the board of supervisors, San Bernardino County, "To Reenforce Our Civil Defenders;" H. C. Burkheimer, publisher of the Glendale News-Press, "To Safeguard Our Homes and Families."

The Third Regiment Band on hearing of the event volunteered its services as provider of music for the evening. Fifteen minutes of confidential motion pictures from the war zones and the presentation of a testimonial scroll to Colonel Hastie will conclude the program.

Boys Jailed And Fined For Pranks

Hallowe'en disturbance which resulted in the apprehension and questioning of more than 40 boys brought fines to six over 18 years old when they appeared in Judge Neale's court Thursday. All pleaded guilty to charges of vagrancy, but because conviction on such a charge may hold serious consequences in future life the charge was changed to disorderly conduct, which is considered much less damaging to a youth's future. Five fines of $20, $15 of which was suspended, were imposed and one straight $20 fine. Among those convicted, one served a two-day jail sentence while two agreed to work out their fines on city street jobs.

As yet no reliable information has been received regarding those who set fire to the palm trees, costing the city around $160.

THANKS FOR THINGS THAT ARE REALLY IMPORTANT

Never in her 165 years of growth to the greatest, richest nation in history has the United States of America had greater reason to be profoundly thankful than on Thanksgiving Day of this year. In expression of the thankfulness, Ralph H. Taylor, executive secretary of the Agricultural Council of California, seems to speak for all men of all walks of life in his current weekly column.

". . . . All Californians and all Americans have special reason to commemorate Thanksgiving Day this year. There are better markets for farm products at better prices; in the cities, there is better purchasing power—better standard of living. But the fact we have more money in our pockets, more food in our stomachs and better clothes on our backs, is not as important as the fact that we are still the freest, most independent people on the civilized earth. Let's be thankful for the things which are really important:

"Because, as American citizens, we still know liberty as an every-day reality, not just as a far-distant objective which must be won by blood and sacrifice.

"Because, as Americans, we can read any newspaper we like, listen to any radio station we wish, worship in any church we may desire.

"Because we have the right to dream dreams and fashion our own objectives—the right to work for ourselves, or someone else, at any trade or profession which appeal to us; the right of free enterprise.

"Because we not only have food and shelter in an abundance given to no other people, but because we also have human dignity; because we are free men, with more of liberty— and more individual opportunity— than any other people in our world."

For blessings so precious—and so rare today, let us be thankful.

Unusual Program At Wistaria Gardens Sunday Evening

Sierra Madreans and other visitors to Wistaria Vine Gardens are assured an interesting evening at the Vine's supper salon Sunday, when Harmony Pearl, noted interpreter of astrological phenomena, "Finds Herself Among the Stars," will be principal speaker.

Following her analysis of world events, Miss Pearl will answer queries from any member in the audience who wishes to give his birth date. This is an unusual program for Sierra Madre, and reservations should be made early.

James Giridlian, neighboring horticulturist, will conduct the usual short garden forum.

The gaint vine is now a brilliant yellow canopy, under which the display of cascade chrysanthemums is especially effective.

Thanksgiving Services At The Churches

"At a time like this, we in America have very good reason to join together in a service of Thanksgiving to God for abundant blessings." With this expression of American Thanksgiving Rev. Frederic Groetsema will welcome parishioners of the Congregational Church for traditional observance of the great American holiday Thursday at 10 o'clock. Traditional anthems and liturgy and a sermon by the pastor will comprise the ceremony.

Choral Eucharist and a Thanksgiving sermon, "For What We Have Received," by the Rev. John S. Neal, will celebrate the day at the Church of the Ascension beginning at 9 a.m.

Rev. Stewart R. Sheriff will speak at Bethany Church of "Our Great Heritage" at 10 o'clock, while the Thanksgiving service will be conducted at 11 o'clock at the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

At St. Rita's Church, Thanksgiving mass will be conducted by the Rev. Father Augustine Scannell at 8 o'clock.

Films Show Real Life In The Navy

Even former service men in the U.S. Navy were thrilled by pictures of Uncle Sam's new first line of defense and life on the nation's modern ships by a series of moving pictures shown at a joint meeting of the Sierra Madre American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts at the ctiy hall Thursday evening.

"Eyes of the Navy" showed importance of the aerial branch of the fleet. The second picture showed life of sailors aboard ship, and the educational advantages they may enjoy in any one of the almost 50 technical skills which will permit them to return to good jobs in civil life when as Naval Reserves they may retire before the four-year enlistment of reserves is concluded, and further advantages and enjoyments they may have with an assurance of a handsome retirement benefit for life when their service has been concluded.

Two former Naval commanders now resident of Sierra Madre, C. E. Rappolee and J. W. Storm, addressed the audience of more than 200, briefly telling the young men present of exceptional opportunities offered life in the modern navy for those over 17 years of age.

The pictures were shown by John Netka, Chief Signalman. Half a dozen other Naval officers were present. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served.

Temperature Stays Up As Rain Falls

Temperatures for the week have remained moderate with the recorded readings as follows:

Planning Commission Approves Zoning For Sale Of Barlow Estate

Property May Go To Sisters Of St. Francis Without Protest

Problem involving the disposition of the W. Jarvis Barlow estate on East Highland avenue progressed a step nearer solution Thursday evening when the city planning commission by a 4 to 3 vote granted a zone variance to Mrs. Barlow who plans to sell the property to the Sisters of St. Francis of Mt. Alverno for the establishment of their Pacific Coast mother house and novitiate.

Action of the commission followed a lengthy hearing at which a minority of the property owners in a radius of 300 feet of the Barlow frontage expressed opposition to granting of the variance. Dr. J. Andrew Hall, speaking for the opposition, presented a petition bearing 34 names and requesting the planning commission to "deny the application, granting of which would destroy the solidarity of the residential zoning ordinance of the city, deprive the city of much needed revenue and disturb the residence spirit of the neighborhood."

Fear that the home would be used for training of nurses involving the care of patients was dispelled when John S. Bolton, representing the Sisters of St. Francis, explained that a novitiate is a preparatory school for young women who wish to enter an order, and that nurse's training is carried on through regular hospital channels after the novitiate has been completed.

In answer to Dr. Hall's statement that the city would derive greater revenue from the property if it were subdivided, President R. E. Wright of the planning commission said, "a subdivision plan is entirely irrelevant and cannot be considered in this discussion for the reason that it would attempt to instruct an owner of private property what to do, or not to do."

The question of tax exemption raised by John Buchan was clarified somewhat when Mr. Wright stated that the property would

Drive Of Red Cross Gets Under Way

Annual Red Cross Roll Call got under way here this week as workers set out to achieve their goal of 1000 members in Sierra Madre. The National drive opened Armistice Day.

JOIN + RED CROSS

Every dollar given to the Red Cross during the annual Roll Call is used for American relief work, and other Red Cross activities within this country. Fifty cents from every membership goes to national headquarters at Washington and the remainder to the local fund.

The Junior Woman's Club will be in charge of the Red Cross button sale and during the next two weeks members will preside at a booth in front of the bank from 10:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. daily. Althea Butler, philanthropy chairman in charge of the drive, will be assisted by Edna Duff Winnie Lees, Helen Needles, Ruth Miles, Sophie Stamer, Louise Stamr, Virginia Olsen and Arleen Olsen.

One of the new responsibilities which has been assumed by the Red Cross since the advent of the defense emergency involves the stationing of Red Cross workers in every defense plant.

What Nation Would Lose To Hitler

Our Democracy And Nazism Contrasted By Scientist At Womans Club

"In speaking today on the subject of "Democracy vs. Totalitarianism,' I will attempt to ... a general foundation for the ... sequent lectures in your ... of 'Developing Democracy's Destiny'," said Dr. Carlton Rodee, professor of political science at the University of Southern California in his lecture Wednesday morning, at the Sierra Madre Woman's Club.

"The word 'versus'," he continued, "is one which is objected to by a large number of people on the grounds that there should be no controversy between the two forms of government; that they should be able to live side by side without conflict. Yet, if we take the different forms of government and compare them point by point we will be able to reason clearly why such a solution is an impossibility.

"To make an entirely tangible comparison, it will be necessary to take two examples of the forms of government, so I will compare German totalitarianism and American democracy.

"Many protaganists of the Nazi regime argue that all governments are basically alike, and, looking at the exterior aspects this seems plausible. However, we may ask, where does the political authority reside. The true measure of Democracy lies in the extent of participation of its peoples. In a Democracy we select our representatives of government. If we aren't satisfied with their administration, we are entitled as free citizens to grumble. We may write letters to our representatives. We may make speeches and we may even express our disapproval of the President. All without fear of concentration camps or firing squads. In sharp contrast is the totalitarianism government which feels that the individual is not rational enough to make a choice and that only very few people have the capacity or desire to reason.

"We have the right of private property and enterprise, both of which are not allowed in a totalitarian state. We have the benefit of true justice and fair trials, while totalitarian justice is simply the right of the stronger to assert his will over the weaker.

"A democratic form of government,' 'asserted Dr. Rodee, "does not believe that any person or groups of people has the monopoly on truth. But dictators of totalitarian states, claim to be the only ones in full possession of the truth. A statement made in 1936 by a professor at Heidelberg University is a glaring example of their philosophy of governemnt, 'We do not know of nor recognize truth for truth's sake, nor sceince for science's sake'," he said.

Dr. Rodee feels that if the German movement is successful it will block out nationalism for everyone but Germany and leave no right of self determination for anyone but Germany. "Totalitarianism," he explained, "means, everytihng in the State and nothing outside the State," which would result in only one thing in the event of the success of their movement; the end of world trade as we know it. A world of only two, three or possibly only one empire.

"We make the mistake," he continued, "of saying, 'This is 1917 all over again.' And we are wrong. This is not 1917 all over again. History never exactly repeats itself. The Kaiser's Germany was a civilized nation dominated by the spirit of empire building. There was no imposed regimentation, and the system he represented did not mean a reversion to barbarism as Hitler's system does.

"To fight this menace we should stop our individualism, our ignorance, intolerance and indifference. If England and the United States are going to save democracy, they must change it from a static one to a dynamic one."

At the close of Dr. Rodee's address a New England luncheon was served. Mrs. Dan Hammack gave several book reviews. One of the highlights of the meeting was the presentation of a lovely new lace tea cloth by Mrs. Al Miller, courtesy and philanthropy chairman of the club.

Hikers Get Lost In Nearby Peaks

While the Angeles Forest is no longer a wild region in the opinion of old timers, it is still not the best place to undertake an unguided afternoon hike, as John Gardiner and Larry Johnson of Altadena learned Sunday when they spent tht night wandering around Buckhorn.

In the afternoon the hikers set out from the Buckhorn public camp for a short walk. When tehy failed to return by 2 a.m. Monnday, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Gardiner notified Art Mills, foreman of tht CCC spike camp at Chilao, who with Keith Kaylor made up a searching party. However Johnson and Gardiner made their way back to Buckhorn later in the morning.

Vision This Valley As A Grand Opera Production Center

The San Gabriel Valley may become a national production center for grand opera, it was announced yesterday by Leon Ettinger, secretary of the Opera Association of Pasadena, who will present Mozart's gay and witty opera the "Marriage of Figaro," in the Pasadena Civic Auditorium on Monday, December 1st, at 8:20. One of the biggest concert managers in America is considering taking the "Marriage of Figaro" company on a nation-wide tour. It is predicted that the anticipated popular success of the performance, on December 1st, will result in a definite touring contract.

Opera with an American tradition sung in the English language with artists who not only sing beautifully, but look their respective parts as well, is the unique goal of the Opera Associates.

WHY NOT WRITE

We're going to suggest that you write a letter, or a card.

No, it isn' t national letter-writing week. Our aim is just to remind you that some draftee you know would be mightily cheered to hear from you—not necessarily a lengthy epistle, but just a few words letting him know you haven't forgotten him.

Naturally, this doesn't apply to parents and relatives who, we're sure, have been writing all along. We're aiming this suggestion at friends and acquaintances of the young men who have been called for training in the army. The home ties, and this includes the home-town ties, are the ones most sorely missed by the selectee. You can help fill that need by a personal letter or card. That, in itself, will show that you appreciate the sacrifice he's making on your behalf in order that you and all the nation's citizens may enjoy security and that this nation's might will earn it the wholesome respect of all other powers.

So why not write him, even if it's just to say "Hello and good wishes?" He'll appreciate it. A better way still is to send the hometown paper.

CUTTING DEEPER

All America is beginning to realize that war, even before the armies march, is hell on the pocketbook. And to two groups, the extraordinary federal taxes, hatched and hatching, are especially grievous. One group includes the minnions who had come to think of themselves as comparatively tax immune because they had incomes beneath the income-tax collector's serious notice. The other group includes the tax-levying and tax-spending officials of all local governments.

When the latest defense taxes were laid on furs, jewelry, amusement tickets, radios, cosmetics, etc., the "little fellow" who wanted to buy his wife a fur-trimmed jacket, or his girl an engagement ring or compact, or take his family to a show, or get a radio for his hall bedroom, suddenly felt the pinch. Then he began to sense a personal need for compensatory lightening of the taxes levied upon him by city councilmen, county supervisors and State legislators. Yet not long ago an earnest recommendation by an interim committee of the California Assembly for a special session of the Legislature to reduce all State taxes was shrugged off at Sacramento.

But only last week Secretary Monganthau intimated that the "little fellows" of the U.S.A., men and women, are in line for a straight defense payroll tax in the form of an increase in the employe's social security tax from the current one percent to five percent. That will hurt! That will take cigaret money, beer money, vacation trip money, hunting trip money, beauty parlor money, right out of the worker's hand every pay day. Probably then a million office and factory and farm workers of California, the State with the most extravagant government in the Union, will demand of Sacramento: "Tighten up. You start sacrificing for defense, too!" And then they'll get results; for officials fear the little fellow at the polls when he's angry— and that defense tax scythe is cutting too close and sharp for comfort.

One-arm drivers and one cylinder intellects go hand in hand.

The.... Watch Tower

By Perley Poore Sheehan

SET us to wondering about the population of various places —of the Gobi Desert, of Mt. Wilson, of Sierra Madre. How many? What kind? Who? Hard-headed businessmen, so-called, have been heard to speak about something they call "invisible assets." We mention this in order to escape any charge of being fantastic. But if assets nobody can see are real—and who'll deny it?—why not then a population also which may be real and yet invisible? Reading Sven Hedin about the dead towns he found in Central Asia. Where have those people gone to? We believe in immortality, don't we? And where?—all the elder star-gazers of Chaldea, Egypt, Yucatan! Don't you suppose they might now supply a considerable "cloud of witnesses" around today's great telescopes? As for Sierra Madre...

HERE this night was Molotov, the new Russian Ambassador. Here was Kurusu, the special envoy from Japan. Here the Russians and Japanese, the Koreans and the Chinese, the Tungus tribesmen and the Mongols, of the first Russian-Japanese war. We say "the first" because we believe that the second war between Japan and Russia is already as good as started. And we thought of Will Levington Comfort who had experiences in the earlier war — experiences that gave him a sort of ghostliness even before his death—he also was here now in Sierra Madre. So too that other brother of the world invisible—and don't ask us whether he is alive or dead — that strange and gifted Irishman named McCullagh, the Herald's correspondent who "covered" that first war.

WE'D been reading the new book by Maurice Hindus. Which he calls Hitler Cannot Conquer Russia. (You'll find it in our Public Library. And it's good; not literary; but sound; first-hand reporting by one who knows — thoroughly informed, easy to read.) And Hindus quotes an early speech by Stalin. As follows: "The history of old Russia is the history of defeats... She was beaten by the Mongol Khans. She was beaten by the Turkish beys. She was beaten by the Swedish feudal barons. She was beaten by the Polish-Lithuanian squires. She was beaten by the Anglo-French capitalists. She was beaten by the Japanese barons." And all of these beat that old Russia, Stalin concludes, "because of her backwardness."

WE remembered well that war in which it has always been said— and here concurred in by Stalin himself—that Russia was defeated by Japan. It was then that we first began to free ourself from an illusion that time and space were absolute. Thus: Where was yesterday?—where tomorrow? Seated there at our desk in Paris, some of the cabled messages from Tokio, or Shanghai, or Mukden, would have come to us by way of India, some by way of the United States—around the world to the West, or around the world to the East—with the time-current of the sun, or against that time-current — gaining a day, losing a day—so that time appeared to be a mere idea, or part of one eternal landscape — both the yesterdays and the tomorrows of those dispatches and the world thereof merging into the Here and the Now of our Paris cable-desk.

ALL those places the dispatches told of—bloody Port Arthur, Seoul, the kaolin fields of Manchuria. Kaolin, a tall, dense millet of those Northern plains by which the native wild Kungus lived; as described by McCullagh who lived there with them—and who transported them alive, along with their lice, their women and their ponies—transported them by their thousands —in what he wrote— to Paris then, retrospectively to Sierra Madre now Kaolin so high and lush and stretching away so far that whole armies could ambush each other in it—so that it became a name suggesting not food and life but grisly slaughter. Japan, by its own confession, was bled white by that war. Not Russia. Although beaten. Beaten not by Japanese barons. That was Stalin's error. He should have said— beaten by Russia's Grand Dukes, by her selfish, indulgent generals.

ALL this came back as we read the Hindus book— at the same time reading, in memory, through some other channel of our mind, the stories of that shadowy time and region written of by McCullagh, written of by Comfort. But what was time? — what was place -- or space? The Japanese and Russian commissioners of that first war hastening then to Washington, there to confer with President Theodore Roosevelt, just as Molotov and Kurusu hasten to Washington now. Moscow, Tokio, Washington — the whole world was in this microcosm called Sierra Madre—even as, to use the speech of the old philosophers, the whole sea is in the drop of water. And all time—past and to come—was Now!

MARCH OF RIMES

By H. F. NOAKE

A SHIFT TO THRIFT

How quickly folks economize when costs of living starts to rise, a wave of thrift and common sense replaces much extravagance. To meet this present upward curve

the question is— how to conserve; what items can we amputate and still maintain our social state. Well that my friend is up to you, but here's a course you might pursue, a way to cut the overhead and keep from going in the red. Just give up driving here and there, costs so much less to use shank's mare; and as for entertainment folks, your radio is full of jokes. Men should avoid the barber shop, let whiskers grow on chin and chop, leave tailored cigarets alone, its thrifty now to roll your own and ladies, what a wad you'll save by going without that permanent wave. Expensive dresses, shun them too, make those old Mother Hubbards do. Cut out all fancy, high-priced meat, make Mulligan stew, ah! there's a treat. Try going without electric light, use good old coal oil lamps at night. Don't throw away pa's worn out hose, just darn, it's cheaper, goodness knows; and Junior's pants about worn through, a patch will make 'em good as new. Yes folks, there are a thousand ways in which to save, these hectic days; remember, though it's hard to face, economy is no disgrace.

Once more the big trek is on, and the jaloppies are westward bound. California, the hub of national defense activities, again glitters like a promised land to the workless workers of the Southwest. In the first nine months of 1941, inspectors at the California border counted the arrival by auto of 85,452 agricultural workers, in increase of 35 per cent over the comparable periods in 1939 and 1940. Few members of this migrant army can qualify for the defense jobs many of them hopefully seek. Nevertheless, the migrant stream once again flows at full tide.

Local government in Los Angeles county spent $83.35 for each and every man, woman and child in the county in 1939-40, according to a report of costs of local governments in California made by California Taxpayers' Association. Subventions and grants from the Federal and State governments are included in these figures. Total expenditures by the local governments in the county amounted to $232,186,936 during the year, it is reported. Of this, the county government spent $70,939,990; the cities in the county, $71,459,002; school districts throughout the county ,$79,398,-656; county special districts, $8,-041,999; and city special districts, $2,347,289. Local government expenditures throughout California increased 42 per cent in the five years between 1934-35 and 1939-40, the report shows, going from $389,000,000 in 1934-35 to $552,-ditures during the same period went up 34 per cent, going from $166,000,000 to $223,000,000. In addition to this, it was pointed out, tremendous increases have been made in Federal government expenditurs, both for non-defense purposes and for defense purposes.

In furthering health and schooling, America still has a job to accomplish. The number of selectees rejected for lack of qualifications on both those grounds has been so great that the government may have to lower the minimum draft age or end deferment to older men. This is the view of Brigadier General Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service. While by far the larger number failed to qualify because of physical disabilities, it is worth noting that 150,000 were rejected because they had not reached the fourth grade educational level. The aim of the selective service act is to strengthen America. If, at the same time, it uncovers some of our weaknesses and leads us to take steps to correct them, selective service will have doubly strengthened the country.

A worried Japan has now reached such a pitch of nervous anxiety that, with no bidding from the United States, she has despatched a special envoy to this country. His aim will be, according to Japanese sources, "to seek immediate clarification on whether further American-Japanese conversations will prove useful." The belligerence of Tokyo's miliatrists shows a marked cooling off when they will take the initiative in seeking "an understanding" with the United States. But unfortunately the military zealots in Japan have so far refused to abandon their dream of imperial conquest. They want to eat their cake and have it, too. They regard this nation's attitude as both peevish and stubborn because we refuse to cease aid to China, because we are opposed to a Japanese invasion of the South Pacific, because we insist on having our rights in the Pacific respected. Any envoy who hopes to win acquiescence from this nation for a further march of conquest is doomed to disappointment.

While Congress is all too likely to adopt half-measures in the hopes of forestalling inflation, citizens themselves are in a position to check the inflation menace through the purchase of defense bonds. As the current review of the Federal Reserve Bank system points out, "If fewer goods are to be produced, it inevitably follows that fewer goods are to be consumed. Should consumers continue to spend all their increased income in the face of this restricted output, the result will simply be a still greater rise in prices." Purchase of defense savings bonds, and voluntary payroll deduction plans to further that aim, are recommended as a sound method by which a vast army of consumers can place themselves in a position to obtain spendable funds later during the critical post-emergency period.

Despite the smashing triumph predicted in Adolph Hitler's recent speech, his mechanized legions have again been brought to a halt on the Moscow front and in the South they have once more been checked. Russia is the first contestant challenged by the German armies which has been even half way prepared to take the blows of mechanized warfare without collapsing like an empty shell. In the last four months' fighting, Germany has made sweeping gains into Russian territory, but none of her successes has yet proved decisive. The destruciton of Soviet armed resistance—this, and not the taking of cities is supposedly the aim of the German general staff—has by no means been accomplished. The message of Dr. Goebbels to the German people, warning of hardships yet to come, seems clear evidence that Hitler knows his armies face a winter on the snow-swept plains of Russia.

Next time a skeptic expresses doubt over the merit of California weather and sunshine, it won't be so hard to silence him. The impartial inquiries of science, after checking body measurements of 147,000 children in all the country's major geographical areas, find that Califoria's youngsters are both taller and heavier than children in other areas. The study, carried out by U.S. government agencies with the cooperation of research centers, covered the ages of 6 through 14. At the age of 7, California boys were already slightly taller and heavier than those of other states. They kept on increasing their advantage until at the age of 14 they were 10 pounds heavier. The same held true for the girls. California, clinching another claim to bigness, gains proof that her fabled sunship isnt' just talk. It's a builder of sturdier youth.

UNCENSORED

By LEONE BAXTER

Are modern young people perhaps just a little smarter about things in general, a little faster on the up-take than their parents and grandparents before them?

"My 16-year-old son has convictions on everything under the sun," a father remarked recently. "He thinks deep thoughts on subjects that I never knew existed at his age — on international credits and what the fleet will do if Japan makes a false step, on which of the current war 'diaries' are fact and which fiction .He is as well informed on the strike situation in defense industries as he is about the standings of the conference teams or the name bands."

Whether or not youngsters are smarter, they most certainly have more facts and figures hurled at them these days than any earlier generation ever did. They have easier knowledge of what goes on across the world than ther grandfathers had of events transpiring in the next town.

Considering all the gratuitous information showered on them, it would be surprising if alert young minds did not form opinions on matters political, philosophical and social. Assimilating that information is a real job. Sorting it, piecing it together, analyzing and forming conclusions. It is the biggeset, hardest job in the world today. The great job of thinking.

President Robert Gordon Sproul of the University of California believes that the basic duty of universities is "to develop a steady stream of informed, thoughtful, inquiring young men and women who will be balanced individuals and good citizens."

Ralph Waldo Emerson admitted that "The hardest task in the world is to think."

Benjamin De Casseres says it another way: "There is always someone waiting to do your thinking for you. After that he puts the ball and chain on your feet. If we Americans would only do our own thinking, each one individually, instead of being swayed by groups and propaganda, no ologies and isms spawned aboard could make any headway here!"

It is a good thing youth is learning to utilize the data dealt out to is to prodigally. Some of its theories will fail to jell; some will be wrong, as those of men before them have been But if in the process youth learns early how to sift the true from the false, to detect propaganda, to reason in the face of emotional appeal, to make decisions and stand behind them— youth will have helped to restore the dignity of self determination, the precious concept of individualism — both too far lost in the world today.

What They Say ---

Stanley Brown, released from Alcatraz after 17 years in federal prisons — "I wouldn't say any prison is escape-proof, not even Alcatraz. When a man's on the rock all he thinks about, day and night, is how to get off. The thing that looks impossible to you looks possible to him."

Major Ford Trimble, morale officer of the 8th corps area— "The solution of army morale is 90 per cent intelligent leadership and 10 percent good food, adequate housing, well-planned train-and and a proper proportion of work and recreation."

Gertrude Atherton, on 84th birthday—"I've buried ten generations of critics, have written something like—is it 45 or 50 books?—and I still have something to say."

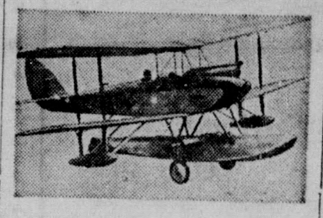

Dr. Paul Dudley White, heart specialist—"Some of the most pathetic victims of heart diseases are those who don't have it. They merely think they have heart disease—and in many cases that proves to be enough to wreck the rest of their lives."

As It Appears To me

¶ Tuesday we celebrated the silencing of guns in the first world war. Flags were flying, the State Guard went on parade. It was Armistice Day, throughout the nation declared a legal holiday so that people might properly commemorate the reestablishment of peace. I wonder why? For it was a solemn day, when flags should have been flying at half mast for a good cause lost; when thousands of men in government hospitals must have wondered bitterly to what purpose had their bodies and their sculs been shattered.

¶ Patriotism is not a flaming torch 24 hours of every day. There are times when men are men, not patriots— when even the most indomitable soul cries "To what avail?"

¶ Spray from the harrowing waves of another war now reach us— perhaps tomorrow the wave itself will break over us. If so another generation of young men will be asked to give the ultimate sacrifice. They will be asked by us who will stay at home, with no first hand contact with any of the horrors which they will face. Perhaps it won't be so ...perhaps thousands of youngsters will just go into the defense industries, and at the end of the war have to begin all over again, probably in the midst of a post war depression.

¶ However it is to be, they who assure the military victory have the right to demand that we, the stay-at-homes, who talk but don't fight, do not again throw away the peace. And so that is what I am thinking about this week... the military triumph of our armed forces, and their subsequent betrayal through the mass stupidity of stay-at-home, think nothing, do nothing civilians who are against participation in any international "entangling alliance" for peace, but who are willing to sacrifice somebody else's neck for their safety in times of war.

¶ If we go into this war, (most of us are no longer staying IF but when) every young American who goes into combat has the right to absolute assurance from you and me that we will throw off our lethargy, learn on what basis a lasting, just peace can be established...and at the end of the war, stand to the last man for that which is right and just, not only for ourselves but for every other nation, foe or friend.

¶ However today there are books, radio talks, study groups, through which our vision may be widened. Here in Sierra Madre there is Federal Union. I am not a Federal Unionist, but I know that every time I attend a meeting my knowledge of world problems and world peace is broadened. I am not a unique case... your knowledge probably needs broadening, too. In the name of justice then let's not talk service to the youngsters, until we, too, are willing to give our service toward peace.—Margaret Eliason.

FIRE FLAMES

By One of the Boys

Meeting nights for the firemen now remiads one of the good old days in Sierra Madre when the city council would announce that there would be an opportunity for folks to remonstrate the issuance of bonds. By that I mean that there are so many in the fire department now. Near 7:30 on Friday evenings, the fire station looks like a mob scene. It is hoped that as the company grows in numbers, it will also grow in the spirit in which is has operated these many years. There is danger in large numbers that close companionship and goodfellowship might wane. As the older members retire and the younger men resume, it is only good advice that they continue ways and means to keep interested. I think I could speak for all the men who have been in the fire department for the past 20 years and say that they heartily enjoy the work and the sociability. The fraternalism has been genuine. The existence of this feeling is greatly due to the leadership of the few, but mostly to the men as a body, and the very great encouragement and co-operation of the townsfolk. Our town newspaper has never missed an opportunity to aid the firemen and to disclose to the public just what was going on amid firemen's circles. To the Sierra Madre NEWS we must tender a lot of thanks for its assistance in our successes.

MUST BE TESTED

The Department of Motor Vehicles has launched an investigaiton of complaints that certain dealers in used cars are evading a new provision of the Vehicle Code requiring adequate adjustment of brakes and lights on used vehicles before they are sold.

The new section, adopted by the Legislature as a safety measure, requires lights and brakes of such vehicles be tested, and adjusted if necessary, to comply with standard provisions of the Code.

SPRING FLOWERS FOR JUNIOR GARDEN CLUB

Twenty-five members of the Junior Garden Club met Friday at the grammar school under the direction of Mrs. Raymond D. Andrews, with Marilyn Simpson, newly elected president, presiding. Minutes were read by Marian Jones, and the members reported on their vegetable gardens. This week each member is planting a dish garden of golden daffodils for spring blooming. The meeting closed with songs and refreshments. Mothers assisting were Mmes. I. Jones and Ralph Valencia.

YOUR HOME AND MINE
BY ANNE WILSON

National defense has influenced our lives in many ways. One of them is increased attention to adequate diet. According to the National Nutrition Conference which met in Washington last summer to devise ways of making the American people eat a more balanced diet, a healthy populace is a bulwark of national defense.

Vegetables are important in a balanced diet. Few of us eat enough of them to get all the possible vitamins and minerals available this natural way. So in planning menus, we should include more of the great variety of tempting vegetables available the year around in California.

We should be careful also to cook vegetables so that they will retain their healthful properties. Boiling them in large quantities of water is a good way to throw away down the drain much of the reason why we are eating them.

Side Glances and Soliloquies
by Libby Trimble

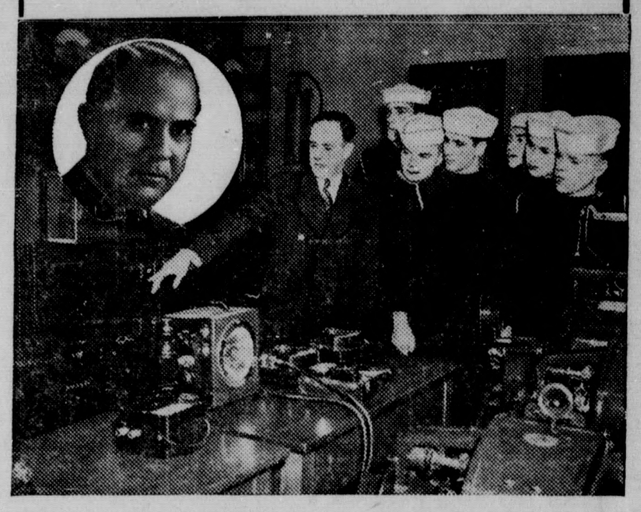

I had the very doubtful privilege of seeing Los Angeles society at the opera last week. While there are, at all productions throughout the world, members of audiences who are thoughtless to the point of rudeness, there are seldom so many gathered at one performance. Not only did they parade down the aisles during the first half of the opening act, but talked, and not in whispers. And though I'd hate to deprive anyone of pleasure in his or her person and dress, the "intermission strut" was overdone to the point of glaring and obvious cheapness. All of which is only from the viewpoint of someone who went to hear the opera, which incidently was excellent. I had already seen a lovely fashion show at the Sierra Madre Woman's Club.

Joe and Sylvia Quittner, proud possessors of two lovely Siamese kittens, have a variety of interesting and entertaining cat stories which are especially enthralling to pet lovers. One of the oddest and most difficult to believe is the one they tell about the mouse. The mouse was in the bathroom so Joe and Sylvia, thinking 'twas an easy way to get rid of the rodent without having to do the dirty work themselves, gave the two cats a pep talk, shut them in the bathroom with the mouse, and went to bed. When they opened the bathroom door in the morning out walked the two cats AND the mouse.

Gladys Carter took her daughter Margaret to a party for two year olds last week. The parents also atteded and according to Gladys there were some lovely children present. "I think it's so funny," she says, "how mothers will look at all the children and the fathers won't pay attention to any but their own." Maybe they're all privately taking credit for their child's good points, or picking out bad ones to blame on their wives families.

There's one young lovely in this town who before long will be in danger of having her neck wrung. Especially if she tells the story of her trip to Sequoia the way I heard it the last time. Instead of saying she forgot her walking shoes, she said she went there with nothing but heels.

"NAVY TRADE TRAINING GAVE ME MY START" SAYS PRESIDENT, SPERRY CORPORATION

THOMAS A. MORGAN (pictured in insert), president of the Sperry Corporation, world's largest manufacturers of aeronautical and marine instruments, received his early technical training in the U. S. Navy, in which he enlisted as a young man. "This has proved of great value to me in later years," said ex-sailor Morgan. Pictured above are new Navy recruits receiving electrical training at one of the modernly equipped Navy Trade Schools. The Navy offers training to young men in nearly 50 different trades and vocations.

Opportunities for advancement, to learn skilled trades, for travel and adventure are identical whether a man enlists in the regular Navy or the Naval Reserve—and his pay, food, clothing, medical and dental care are the same.

Many Timely Books Added To Shelves Of The City's Public Library

Volumes of non-fiction ranging through practical trade information, personality analysis, poetry and biography, and the war have just been added to the Sierra Madre Public Library.

Particularly timely are "War in the Air," Garnett; "Red Decade," Lyons; "No Other Road to Freedom," Stowe, and "Good Neighbors," Herring. Others of interest are "Louisiana Hayride," Kane; "New Encyclopedia of Machine Shop Practice," Barnwell; "Modern Business English," Babenroth; "Viking Book of Poetry," Aldington; "Big Family," Partridge; "Your Personality," Case; and "Hortus Second," Bailey.

Current popular fiction includes "The Sun is My Undoing," Steen; "School for Eternity," Hervey; "Wakefield's Course," De la Roche; "The Sun Shall Greet Them," Rame; "Affair of the Skiing Clown," Knight; "Fire in the Sky," Collier, and "Home is Here," Meller.

Forty-six persons registered for borrowers privileges during October. Total circulation was 4857, of which 3787 were adult readers and 1070 juvenile.

TAKE STEPS TO BUSINESS SUCCESS AD AD AD

Does your family get the benefit of the vitamins you pay for?

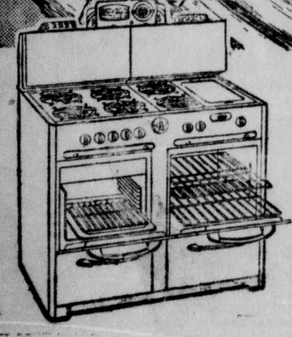

Improper cooking destroys vitamins—let a CP gas range help you save them

AN IMPORTANT FACT! Vitamins necessary for your family's health are easily lost through the wrong kind of cooking. So it isn't enough just to buy foods that contain vitamins. Make certain that these vital food elements actually reach your family table.

YOU'LL FIND VITAMIN-SAVING much easier—more dependable—with a CP (Certified Performance) gas range. To serve vitamin-rich vegetables, for example, use little water—and take advantage of the "keep warm" position on the CP gas burner. And remember—CP broiling, as well as CP controlled-heat roasting, is vitamin thrifty, too. Get complete information soon from a DEALER or SOUTHERN COUNTIES GAS CO.

Three of the ways a CP gas range will help you save vitamins

2. VITAMIN-SAVING BROILER. No preheating necessary. Meats retain more vitamin-rich juices, because cold-start broiling enables you to broil the portion nearest the flame, without overcooking the under side.
3. VITAMIN-SAVING OVEN. CP controlled heat enables you to roast meats with minimum of water, and yet avoid drying-out. Low temperature CP roasting also enables you to reduce meat shrinkage as much as 20%.

AND HERE ARE OTHER REASONS YOU'LL LIKE A CP GAS RANGE—Beauty: Breath-taking new design! Convenience: Automatic lighting; high-speed burners; automatic oven control, plus time-saving accessories! Cleanliness: Tailored heat to banish boilovers; smokeless broiling; smooth porcelain finish! Economy: One-third the average operating cost of the next-best method!

Planners And Army Discuss Freeway

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wright of 540 West Alegria avenue, attended the monthly meeting of the Regional Planning Congress of Los Angeles County held Saturday at the Oakmont Country Club in Glendale. Over 100 members and guests attended to hear Major William Fox of the U.S. Army, formerly chief engineer of Los Angeles County.

County supervisors and engineers discussed the proposed Los Angeles River freeway, which has been considered by both military and civilian groups as being necessary to the defense and well-being of Southern California.

U. C. WRITING CLASS HAS 200 MEMBERS

When the University of Californnia continues its Monday morning extension classes in writing at the YWCA in Pasadena next week the total number of persons seeking writing help under Maren Elwood, the instructor, in the Sitrra Madre, Arcadia, San Marino and Pasadena districts will pass the 200 mark. The present class beginning in article and feature writing will be followed by a series of discussions and lectures on Fiction writing.

Miss Elwood is also known here as a critic and has addressed many writing groups besides acting as judge for their contests.

EXTRA ATTRACTIONS AT RIVIERA SUNDAY

Several extra attractions will be presented at Riviera Country club such as a half mile trotting race, exhibition of Dr. M. Ostermeyer's noted high school horses, and a spectacular stunt of jumping through a circle of fire which Eva Frey does with her famous horse, quickstep. There will be the usual exciting polo games.

Horsemen Arrive As Race Season Nears

Opening of the Santa Anita racing season again brings to Sierra Madre several families who make their home here for a few months out of each year. Already in town are P. J. Pelletteri, who will live at 162 East Alegria, and "Speck" Dunn and family.

Each season the track brings 50 or more horse owners, trainers and jockeys to Sierra Madre, many of whom occupy the same quarters each year.

Approve Variance For Sale Of The Barlow Estate

not be tax free. Mrs. Frances Whitaker, secretary of Mrs. Barlow, then revealed that an application for a reduction of taxes had been made last year by Mrs. Barlow. This resulted in a reduction of $13,000 in the assessed valuation of the house. Total assessed valuation of the property is now $37,380 of which $22,980 is on the buildigs. Mrs. Whitaker expressed doubt that any further reduction would be made by the board of supervisors through whom all applications for tax reductions must be made.

Further objections raised were not against any specific institution or group but against any and all zone variances which would disrupt the unity of a residential district.

In granting the variance the planning commission expressed the opinion that the establishment of the Mother House in Sierra Madre would in no sense affect the valuation of adjoining property, which would remain a quiet residential district, and that it would not establish a dangerous precedent which would disrupt the zoning ordinance.

Decision of the commission is final unless an appeal is filed with the city council within ten days after the hearing. Should this be done, the council will then set another date for a public hearing at which additional evidence may be submitted by both groups.

Members of the commission voting in favor of the application were R. E. Wright, chairman; Miss Thomasella Graham, Frank Spencer and Dr. Webster Vannier. Those opposing were William Schwartz, Paul Carter and Mrs. John Osgood. Because he has previously served the Sisters of St. Francis in a legal capacity City Attorney Walter F. Dunn, voluntarily relinquished his vote. Remaining member not voting wsa Dr. John L. Woehler who was absent.

themselves well in making the school's participation noteworthy.

A striking arrangement consisting of a single leaf and flower of the philodendron by Mrs. R. W. Solomon was the entry of the Sierra Madre Garden Club, while a desert scene arranged by Mrs. Stewart and entered by the Esther Forman Garden Club created much favorable comment. Jacques Hahn showed yellow chrysanthemums, yellow and whiet marguerites and pots of the unusual lotus vine. Damon's Sierra Madre Nursery centered on Hibiscus, showing several exquisite varieties which thrive well in Sierra Madre.

Fine specimens of bronze cascade chrysantehmums and an arrangement of bronze gerberas and green and orange fruit were entered by the Wistaria Vine Gardens.

Special division first awards went to Mrs. Brauman for a novelty arrangement of Spanish bayonet; Mrs. J. S. Billheimer who entered tithonias, and Mrs. William Burr for a Colonial bouquet.

Novelty arrangement prizes were awarded to Mrs. Albert Barkman and Miss Kathleen Sampson. Mrs. E. E. Bacon, Mrs. Hortense Hill and Mrs. Barkman placed first, second and third, respectively for small arrangements. Ann Rogers, Jean Askew and Mrs. Brauman were winners in the medium arrangement class, while vase arrangement winners were Mrs. Askew and Miss Clara Sykes.

Table decoration awards went to Mrs. Barkman, Mrs. Homer Glidden, Mrs. Carl Hanson, Mrs. Elizabeth Turner, Mrs. Wm. Burr, Mrs. E. E. Bacon, Miss Martha Pritchard, Miss Emily Childs, Miss Alice Tufts and Miss Kirchner.

Winners in the rose exhibit were Mrs. Henry S. Burnham, Mrs. W. S. Hull, Miss Clara Sykes, Mrs. Haxton, Mrs. Warden, Mrs. Eliazbeth Turner and C. W. Jones.

Exhibiting prize winning chrysanthemums were Mrs. Askew, Ann Rogers, Mrs. C. H. Savard, Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. A. E. Morgan and Mrs. Barkman.

Special mention from the judges went to Mrs. K. Sakamoto for her fine Rex Begonia and to Mrs. Herbert Blakeman who exhibited asparagus scandens plumosas.

Mrs. Amanda Freeland and Dr. L. A. Sherman, and Mrs. Sakamoto all showed prize winning plants.

Assisting Mrs. W. S. Hull, who was chairman of the flower show, were Mrs. Charles Askew, Mrs. A. E. Morgan, Mrs. Henry S. Burnham and Miss Clara Sykes.

Navy Commander Tells Young Men Of Fine Future

tions, keeps his record clear and puts forth the proper effort, is sure to be successful. No promise will be made to any man enlisting that he will be placed in any of the service schools because much depends upon the man himself.

For each trade or specialty, there is a corresponding educational course of study and instruction, through the several grades of promotion, and each man must study and pass an examination in his specified trade or specialty, before being promoted to the next higher grade. It takes a smart lad to be trained to run a calculating machine, repair a watch, set hairline sights on a modern gun, mix a doctor's prescription, repair a turbine or telephone, operate a radio set, or handle any of the other myriad specialties in a modern naval vessel. Some 45 trades are taught in the Navy today. Graduates of the schools, numbering more than 5,000 yearly, have a foundation on which the career of a finished artisan can be built..

You go ahead fast in the Navy. Pay increases come regularly. By the end of a first enlistment you can be earning up to six times as much as when you signed up.

Pay in the Navy ranges from $21 per month for apprentice seaman to $157.00 a month for chief petty officers. Promotions are continually being made to supply trained specialists for the modern men-of-war. Over 50,000 men are advanced to the next higher rating yearly. Advancements depend on a man's efficiency, performance of duty, and ability.

The young navy man who has the neceessary educational background, aptitude, and is within the age limits, may, after having served a specified time at sea, and, having passed a preliminary examination and being recommended by his Commanding officer, be sent to a preparatory school at one of the Naval Training Stations. Here he is given an intensive course of instruction preparatory to taking the entrance examinations for admission to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. These entrance examinations are the regular civil service examinations held for all candidates. The successful candidate then receives his appointment to the Naval Academy without having to receive the same from his Senator or Congressman.

Qualified chief petty officers and petty officers first class, may, upon passing the required examinations, be appointed Warrant Officers. They then pass from an enlisted status to an officer status. After a Warrant Officer has served the required number of years, he may take an examination for Ensign and if successful, be commissioned in the line or staff. From thereon, he may advance through all the commissioned grades.

Food that is good, wholesome and plain is prepared in clean modern galleys. Menus prepared by experts provide savory meals, carefully balanced in food value. Health of the men is of primary importance. Medical and dental care is furnished. Naval hospitals mantained ashore have the finest equipment available, while the ships of the fleet are equipped with modern medical departments.However the percentage of sick men in the Navy is lower than in any other occupation.

Keenly contested athletic events insure strong bodies, while well stocked libraries develop healthy minds. Moving pictures and other entertainments provide amusements.

Security for the future is assured. After 20 years' naval service a man may be transferred to the Fleet Reserve and receive as retainer pay one-half the base pay of his rating. After 30 years' naval service a man may be placed on the retired list with a substantial pension.

Naval maneuvers take U. S. ships all over the world—Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines, North and South America. You get regular shore leaves in adventurous ports.

This is what the Navy offers young men. What does the young man offer the Navy? Does he well remember his oath of allegiance when he enlisted? Or did he merely repeat it after the recruiting officer and then forget all about it? This oath is not to be taken lightly, for the recruit says: "I solemnly swear that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America, and that I will serve them honestly and faithfully against all their enemies whomsoever, and that I will obey the orders of the President of the United States, and the orders of the officers appointed over me, according to the Rules and Articles for the Government of the Navy, so help me God."

Wrong Impression Prevails About Installment Credit Says President Of Sierra Madre's Bank

"Contrary to many general public impressions installment credit is still available for the purchase of all types of merchandise." This was the statement yesterday of R. C. Lewis, president of the Sierra Madre Savings Bank.

"Many people have heard vague statements to the effect that the government has done something about the credit buying, but few are clear as to just what has happened," he says. "Some are under the false impression that the government has tried to stop it altogether."

In an effort to help clarify the situation, the two following points were emphasized by Mr. Lewis:

1—Many articles are not in any way affected by the recent governmental rulings and merchants can still sell such items on any credit terms they desire.

2—The buyer can get up to 18 months credit on the purchase of any listed article by complying with certain down payment requirements. In many instances the required down payment is no more than retail merchants have always demanded.

The government rulings affect five groups of items and the amount required as down payment varies from 10 per cent to one-third. In all cases, however, the purchaser has 18 months in which to pay the balance.

Items requiring 10 percent down are as follows: New household furniture, including iceboxes, bed springs and mattresses but excluding wall coverings, draperies and bed coverings, pianos and household electric organs.

Those requiring 15 per cent down are: Household furnaces and heating units for furnaces, water heaters, water pumps for household use, plumbing and sanitary fixtures for home use, household air conditioning systems.

Items requiring 20 percent down are: Mechanical refrigerators, washing machines, ironers, vacuum cleaners, cooking stoves and ranges, heating stoves, electrical dish washers, room-unit air conditioners, sewing machines, radios, phonographs and musical instruments made principally of metals.

One-third down is required on the following items: Automobiles, trucks are excepted; Materials and services for the repair, alteration or improvement of real property, excluding the items already listed, have no specific down payment but come within the ruling when the total is less than $1000 and must be paid of in 18 months.

Latest styles in wedding invitations and announcements—printed or engraved—are inexpensive at THE NEWS office.
